About Batch Processing

RiskMeter's batch processing service leverages the same technology as the RiskMeter Online, but it enables users to run multiple addresses, schedules or book of business transfers without the need to type in each address. All users need to do is upload a file, select the reports they want to run and the locations will be automatically processed. This self service tool allows users to process large number of policies anytime, anywhere!

Why Use Batch Processing?

- Available 24/7
- Run schedules without assistance
- All reports are available
- Process multiple addresses without having to type them in
- Quickly quote new business and renewals
- Streamline underwriting operations
- Allow underwriters to focus on reviewing tough cases
- Improve customer service and claims handling
- Gain a better understanding of risk exposure
- Eliminate data entry errors

How Can Batch Processing Be Utilized?

Agent Book Roll / Book of Business Transfers – Evaluate an agent's book of business to see which policies to accept or reject based on your underwriting guidelines.

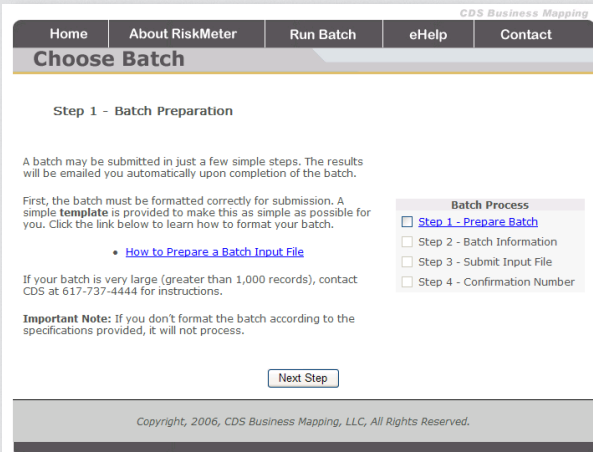

Coding Schedules of Risks – Users who write multiple locations on a schedule of risks can run them through in batch, instead of manually entering each individual policy address.

Use Results to Perform Analysis – Run a subset of your book of business to identify problem risks.

Create Compelling Reports for Customers – Users can take a customer's batch results and create reports highlighting certain risk factors (ex. Percentage of polices in a flood zone, number of policies within 10 miles of the coast, etc).
